

Streamline Employee Onboarding and Offboarding

The holistic era of employee experience starts now.

Do your IT and HR teams work in harmony to empower employees from their first to last day at your organization?

Historically, the onboarding process has presented a variety of challenges, including:

- IT and HR alignment
- Supporting specific departmental needs
- Enforcing documentation and process standards
- Manual execution of time-consuming tasks

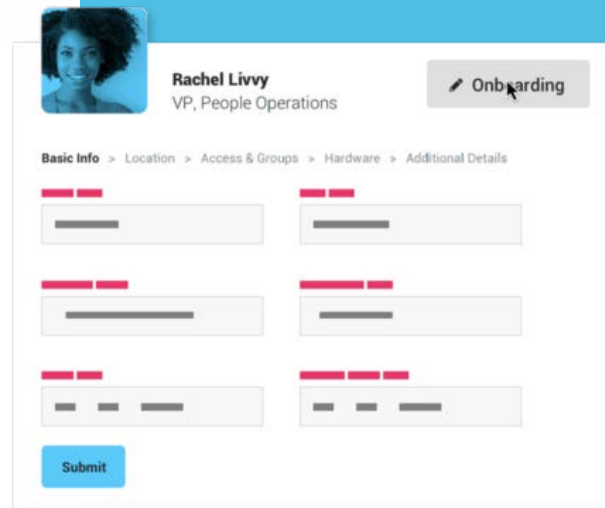

Electric is a technology company with the full capabilities of a managed service provider (MSP) — and then some. Electric helps overcome these obstacles and bridge the processes between IT, HR and the employee. Offering tools to specify an employee’s start date, the types of resources the employee needs and which groups the employee should be assigned, Electric takes the nervousness out of the first day — for all parties.

First impressions matter, so when an organization nails theirs, operational efficiency, employee satisfaction and retention all go up.

Employee satisfaction as soon as they accept the position

A driving force behind Electric's streamlined IT management solution is Jamf Pro. Where Electric takes care of many day-to-day IT needs, which includes Slack-based support for help tickets, the Jamf Pro integration ensures the network, devices and applications are secure.

Jamf Pro customers can also take advantage of The Electric Platform; a portal for HR to provision hardware and user accounts, without needing to work within Jamf Pro or any other tool directly. This simplified process:

- Increases employee communication and satisfaction through a flawless onboarding workflow
- Reduces the time it takes an employee to become productive on their device
- Ensures security and standardization across device deployments and app installs

More to love about first (and every day) of employment

Whether you're part of a large organization that needs to improve its onboarding process or you simply don't have the bandwidth (or desire) to go it alone, Electric and Jamf have a solution that benefits your entire company.

Let us help you maximize employee uptime on day one — and keep it that way.

Put our solution to the test and see the benefits for yourself.
